-:UPI/Online Payment Fraud :-

- What the crime is :-

UPI (Unified Payments Interface) or online payment fraud is a type of financial cybercrime which involves scammers stealing money by tricking users into clicking malicious links or compromising their secure UPI PINs and also through random sharing random OTPs.

- A frictional Incident :-

It is a frictional incident with a first-year college student named Arjun, who got tricked by a scammer and got scammed. Let see what happened…

- How it typically happens (step-by-step) :-

1. At very first, a scammer tries to contact him via WhatsApp or simple phone calls, offering some part-time job offer to him and promises a package of ₹10,000 per month.

2. Then, he tries to convince him with some instant seat lock with a "refundable" fee of ₹1000.

3. Then, he immediately finds the provided offer very tempting and agrees.

4. After all this, He paid him ₹1000 on his given code, but then he claims some failed transition due to server errors and told him to pay again and Arjun instantly paid him again as the scammer has created a tense and critical environment.

5. After all this he said he will contact him later for further updates. But later, He received a message from his bank that an unknown transition of ₹2000 has done from an unknown source and Then he immediately tried to reach him again but the scammer already blocked his number This is how he got scammed.

- Who is usually targeted :-

Most of the elderly person, collage students, teenager and sometimes backward class people as they all are easy targets for spammers to convince in their tricks.

- What the consequences are :-

The immediate consequence is a not only a direct financial loss but also serve as a great stress, anxiety and even a mental disturbance due to this.
